WELCOME TO DUBROVNIK

Welcome to ISPS's 17th International congress for the psychological treatments of the schizophrenias and other psychoses. Due to the increasing interest in the psychology of the psychoses, ISPS has decided to organise international congresses every two years. That is why we are welcoming you to the wonderful city of Dubrovnik, Croatia, just two years since the last congress, i.e. from 31st May to 4th June 2011.

A HUNDRED YEARS OF THE PSYCHOLOGY OF PSYCHOSES

Following Emil Kraepelin's (1896) essential breakthrough in classification of psychotic disorders, Eugen Bleuler (1911) understood that deep splits in the functioning of human psyche plays one of the basic roles in psychotic disorders.

In the year of our congress in Dubrovnik we will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the term "schizophrenia" which has become so present in our everyday life. This is the occasion to put the question – what will we as professionals succeed in creating during the next hundred years?

Through the last half of the 19th century and the whole 20th century many exceptional researchers and illustrious minds were dedicating their professional lives to foster notions about the important elements from biological, psychological and social spectra that could bring about psychotic disturbances. Nevertheless it remains not clear enough what causes difficulties in the psychological and social functioning of patients with psychotic disorder.

Many authors, accepting the biological and cognitive theories, give priority to the disturbance of the thinking process and its content, followed by concomitant difficulties in affectivity, interpersonal relationships, the feeling of the self, will, and psychomotor activity. These difficulties include social disturbances, insufficient self-care, and disruption of the quality of life, which make important reflections on everyday functioning.

Other discuss the influence of early stages of development in the appearance of psychosis. It is proven that some early experiences become impressed in memory. During that development, the interactions with the environment are multiplied and transformed until a certain level of maturity is reached. In this way, the experience of oneself and one's environment is gradually established. Intrapsychic and interpersonal dynamics become progressively filled with both cognitive and affective elements. It is assumed that these processes were disturbed during early developmental phases, and could be improved through comprehensive bio-psycho-social treatments.

MIND IN BRAIN

A century ago Freud was criticised for his convictions that at the roots of all human psychological functioning there are neurophysiological processes. Due to modern neuroscientific discoveries developed especially in the last three decades, the functioning of the brain and "mind-in-brain" point of view is clarifying many questions. But at least as an inspiration we may ask is "schizophrenia" just a scientific delusion? Many possible answers are waiting for the researchers from biological, psychological and social fields to clarify the question.

MEETING OF MINDS IN DUBROVNIK

Nowadays we have at our disposition many therapeutic approaches that enable persons with psychosis to remain in the stream of everyday life as anybody else. Here we are coming to ISPS in Dubrovnik, professionals from diverse sides of the world, to expose and exchange the experiences and knowledge we use in trying to help people with psychosis, their families and other their human environment. What would be the best approaches that would bring recovery and empowerment of people functioning on psychotic levels?

We, organisers of this 17th ISPS congress, decided to propose to our colleagues and friends, the topic of PSYCHOLOGICAL THERAPIES FOR PSYCHOSES IN THE 21TH CENTURY – INFLUENCING BRAIN, MIND AND SOCIETY.

It is not by chance that Dubrovnik was chosen as a meeting place in 2011, because of the tradition of the town to serve as a crossroads for world advanced thinking. ISPS Croatia has succeeded to gather every year here in Dubrovnik colleagues who are applying psychological therapies for psychoses in the frame of reference of the comprehensive bio-psycho-social treatments of people with psychoses. Here we have regular exchange with our neighbouring colleagues from Slovenia, Greece, Italy and other European countries, and receiving guest-lecturers from Boston to Singapore.

DUBROVNIK - A World Heritage Site

We do hope that in Dubrovnik you will find the rich history of a city – an independent republic for more than thousand years, a World cultural heritage under UNESCO protection, with the warm and elegant atmosphere of a Mediterranean city with its unique charm. The beautiful Dalmatian coast will add to the excitement of the visit. We believe that the Dalmatian gastronomy will please you, as well. And we do hope that many airline connections, as well as highways connecting Dalmatia with the European highways network, as well as ferries from Italy across Adriatic, will facilitate your presence in Dubrovnik. The variety of accommodation possibilities will be at your disposition, too.

See you soon at the Dubrovnik ISPS International congress,

31st May – 4th June 2011

DUBROVNIK - THE ADRIATIC PEARL

Dubrovnik is a medieval city on the Croatian side of the Adriatic coastline and a treasure-trove of cultural-historical monuments that were created throughout its thousand-year existence. In the past, it was a City-Republic, and alongside Venice one of the most famous cultural-economic centres on the Mediterranean.

In more recent times, it has become the center of modern cultural and tourist events: a city of summer festivals – an international parade of top musical and theatrical achievements, a city of museums and galleries. These values have turned Dubrovnik into a place that offers a rich selection of various experiences and excitement, but also a complete holiday in a quiet and calming, mild Mediterranean ambience and wonderful seaside landscapes.
